Kentucky Alcoholic Beverage Control to Host NCSLA Conference in Louisville

Meeting brings together regional regulators, industry leaders

Frankfort, Ky. (Jan. 31, 2017) –The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) has been selected by the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators (NCSLA) to host the group's 2017 Northern/Southern Regional Conference.

The conference will be held at the historic Brown Hotel in Louisville from Nov. 5-8 and will bring together regulators, producers, and distributors from 26 states. This year's meeting will focus on the industry's top issues and will provide attendees with a forum to collaborate and share best practices.

"The regional NCSLA conference presents our state with a unique opportunity to lead the discussion on the most important topics impacting the alcohol industry," said ABC Commissioner Christine Trout. "As this year's hosts, we look forward to welcoming our sister states and showcasing the best of Kentucky."

NCSLA expects approximately 150 attendees to travel to Louisville for the conference. The four-day meeting will include breakout sessions, guest speakers, and visits to local tourist attractions. Kentucky has been home to NCSLA meetings in the past, hosting annual conferences in both 1950 and 1963.
